WHAT 175 CLIENT SITES TAUGHT US

Sites with 10+ pages got about 2x the Google visitors.

We crawled 175 of our client sites. Here's which pages actually count.

01

One page per service.

Roof repair, roof replacement and gutters are three different searches. Give each one its own page with real details.

02

One page per town.

People search with a town name. Every site we build starts with at least four town pages for places the owner actually works.

03

Real words, not filler.

Swapping the town name into the same paragraph doesn't help. Write what's different: the jobs, the area, the questions people ask.

04

Photos of your own work.

Stock photos look like every other site. Your crew and your finished jobs show a customer you're real.

05

Every page has a way to call.

Someone landing on a town page should be able to tap to call without hunting for it. Every page, every time.

One page is one door.

Ten real pages give customers ten ways to find you. That's a pattern, not a promise.

Jared Kolsun

Co-Founder & CTO

Bright Automations · brightautomations.org

Follow for what we learn building websites for local businesses.